ANOTHER QUIET DAY

Very Little Business is Done on the Waterfront.

BUT ONE VESSEL CROSSES IN

A Rough Bar is Reported and Several Outward Bound Vessels Are Bar-Bound—The City of Panama Arrives Down But Remains in Port—Notes.

The City of Panama, with a fair passenger list and a good cargo, arrived down from Portland at 3:30 yesterday afternoon. She anchored in the harbor and will leave out for San Francisco, probably today.

The British ship Wavertree has finished loading grain, at Portland and is expected to be down the river at any time.

The Geo. W. Elder is due down early this morning for Eureka, San Francisco and San Pedro.

Captain Curtis of the steamer Santa Rosa reports that at 7:30 p. m., December 5th, he passed close to a large piece of wreckage, evidently a derelict, in a position 20 miles S. 26 E. true, from Point Sur light.

A telegram from Eureka states that on December 7, the power schooner Sotoyome was abandoned on fire, eight miles off that point.

The Yellowstone will probably be down the river at noon today laden with lumber.

The Numantia, which arrived down on Wednesday, is still lying at anchor off the O. R. & N. Company's dock, awaiting favorable conditions to cross out.

The steamer Nome City, in ballast, from San Francisco arrived in at 10 a. m. yesterday and left up for Stella at 11 o'clock, where she will load lumber for San Francisco.

The Northland, which has been bar-bound for the past three days, was moored yesterday at the Callender dock, awaiting a cessation of bar conditions. She left out at 3 p. m., on her fourth attempt, but no reports were received of her reaching the sea. She may be able to go out this morning.

The steamer Aurelia, which left San Francisco before the departure of the Nome City, has not been heard from. She is probably bucking the bad weather up the coast.

The Daisy Freeman cleared for San Francisco yesterday with a cargo of 75,000 feet of lumber.

Yesterday showed no improvement in waterfront matters. The bar was reported rough in all messages from North Head. No vessels were sighted nor had any vessels passed out in or out after 8 a. m. Several vessels are due at the mouth of the river and the pilots are keeping a sharp lookout for them but as yet none are reported in sight. When the weather moderates we may look for busy days on the waterfront. After the present storm subsides heavy swells may be looked for for several days.

The French bark Buffon from Newcastle was reported three days ago as being outside with pilot aboard. Since that time she has not been seen nor is anything known of her whereabouts. She left Newcastle on October 13th consigned to Kerr, Gifford & Co., of Portland. Pilot Gunderson is aboard and he no doubt is standing out waiting for favorable weather.

Captain Tibbets, of Eureka, telegraphs that the nearly submerged hull of the power schooner Sotoyome is anchored between the whistling and bell buoys, off Humboldt Bar. Mariners are warned accordingly.
